Eddie Bumbacco
is one of many players who has etched his name in the Notre Dame hockey
record book.

Bill Rothstein hustled his way to five career short-handed goals (1978-82) and was the second-leading scorer, behind Dave Poulin, on the 1981-82 CCHA runner-up team, totaling 57 points (27 goals, 30 assists).

COMING AT YOU: The formidable threesome from the early 1970s of (from left) Ian Williams, John Noble and Eddie Bumbacco each are members of the "20/20" single-season club and each surpassed 200 career points, with Williams also owning a share of the Notre Dame record for goals in a period (4) and goals in a game (5) while Noble owns the Irish record for quickest hat trick (6:50).

Len Moher (left) and John Peterson remain the most accomplished classmates ever to platoon in the nets for the Notre Dame hockey program (1974-78).

Sterling Black (above) scored three times at Western Michigan on Feb. 8, 1992. Two years earlier, Black had found the net just 12 seconds into a game at Arizona to establish the still-standing Irish record for quickest goal in a game.

Jim Brown became the first Notre Dame defenseman to record a hat trick, doing so at Michigan as a member of a 1981-82 team that won 23 games and outscored the opposition by 32 goals (199-167).

D'Arcy Keating registered a four-goal game at Boston College on Dec. 18, 1971, becoming the first Irish player to post a four-goal game versus a team that currently competes on the Division I level.

Notre Dame and Miami Battle to CCHA's First Scoreless Tie

Notre Dame and Miami played the first scoreless tie in the history of the Central Collegiate Hockey Association as they battled through 65 minutes of play on Saturday, Dec. 10, 1994, at the Joyce Center Fieldhouse.

Irish goaltender Wade Salzman stopped 24 Redskin shots, while Chuck Thuss made 20 saves in goal for Miami. The shutout was the first (and only) in Salzman's collegiate career. The Associated Press ran the final score as 9-8 in favor of Miami because the Redskins had nine penalties compared to eight for the Irish.

The previous scoreless game involving a current CCHA team came way back in 1954 (prior to formation of the CCHA), when Michigan and Michigan State played in East Lansing.

Only two other scoreless ties had been played in collegiate hockey history (prior to the Notre Dame-Miami game), both involving Michigan and Wisconsin. The first was played at Detroit's Olympia Arena in 1928, while the second occurred two years later in Ann Arbor. Maine and Boston University played to a 0-0 tie at BU's Walter Brown Arena on Feb. 19, 1994, but the game was later forfeited by Maine for using an ineligible player and is officially recorded a 1-0 Boston University win.
