Notre Dame's Randy Waldrum Nearing Quarter-Century of Coaching Excellence

Randy Waldrum

Head Coach

Sixth Season

Midwestern State '81

When Notre Dame went searching for a women's soccer coach in 1999, the University was looking for an experienced coach to lead the NCAA's winningest program of the 1990s. Notre Dame found exactly what it was looking for in Randy Waldrum, who has coached at nearly every level during his career.

From his first coaching job at MacArthur High School in Irving, Texas, to leading Notre Dame to the 1999 NCAA championship game, Waldrum – whose teams have combined for a 140-33-7 record (.797) during the past eight seasons – has been recognized by U.S. Soccer as one of the game's top soccer minds at any level. He has held a position on the U.S. national team coaching staff since 1992 and recently was named a National Soccer Coaches Association of America (NSCAA) staff instructor.

Waldrum is able to draw on the lessons learned from nearly a quarter-century in the college coaching ranks, providing the Irish women's soccer program with the full package in its head coaching position. A respected tactician and student of the game, Waldrum also has combined with his staff to consistently attract some of the nation's top talent. In the last two years alone, Notre Dame's 2003 incoming class was rated fifth in the nation while the current 2004 freshmen were ranked as high as second in the nation.

Waldrum's .731 career winning percentage ranks eighth all-time among women's soccer coaches with 10-plus seasons on the Division I level.

His first five Notre Dame teams continued the program's tradition of excellence by combining for a 94-19-4 record (.821), winning four BIG EAST regular-season and three tournament titles, and advancing to the NCAA Championship each year – including a runner-up finish in 1999 and another trip to the College Cup semifinals in 2000. The Irish also posted a 26-11-2 record versus top-25 teams in the first five years of the Waldrum era.

The first three-time BIG EAST Conference women's soccer coach of the year ('99, '00, '03) and a five-time NSCAA regional coach of the year over the course of his career, Waldrum recently has attended elite nine-day training courses in Glasgow, Scotland, during the summers of 2003 and '04, with that elite coaching clinic sponsored by the Scottish Football Association and providing the steps to Waldrum receiving his UEFA advanced coaching certificate.

Waldrum's Notre Dame players have combined for eight All-America honors – led by 2000 national player of the year Anne Makinen – and seven Academic All-America citations, including 2001 defender Monica Gonzalez, who completed the rare double of All-America and Academic All-America honors in the same season. His 2003 squad became the first in Division I women's soccer history to produce athlete who graduated with a 4.00 cumulative grade-point average as a chemical engineering major while also competing for a spot on the final roster for the U.S. Under-21 National Team. Pruzinsky returned for a fifth year of eligibility in 2003 and was named the CoSIDA Academic All-American of the Year for women's soccer, also receiving a prestigious NCAA post-graduate scholarship.

Waldrum remains the only first-year coach in the 22 years of the NCAA women's soccer tournament to lead a team to the championship game, after guiding his 1999 squad to four straight wins in NCAA tournament play. Three previous first-year coaches had reached the semifinals (doing so in the days of 12- and 16-team NCAA fields), but perhaps none of those three had led a team through a harder route than Waldrum did against a 48-team draw. The Irish defeated Atlantic-10 conference champion Dayton and 1999 regular season, Notre Dame had succumbed to a blitz of four goals in the first 21 minutes of a 4-2 loss at top-ranked Santa Clara. In the rematch at the NCAA semifinals, Waldrum motivated his team with surprise green jerseys. The Irish responded with an inspired performance in a 1-0 win over the Broncos, with 14,000 fans looking on. Despite a loss in the title game two days later, Waldrum had taken Notre Dame farther than any first-year coach in Division I women's soccer history.

A new challenge awaited in 2000, as Notre Dame looked to replace five graduated starters – three of them All-Americans, and a fourth the team's all-time leading goalscorer. Under the clever guidance of Waldrum, the Irish overcame the loss of two injured starters for good chunks of the 2000 season and returned to the top of the women's soccer rankings, led by the team's unique formation of three central-based midfielders and a stingy defense that led the nation in goals-against average (0.39).

Makinen, the leader of that midfield unit, went on to earn national player-of-the-year honors while the 2000 Irish posted a 23-1-1 overall record, with the only blemishes being a scoreless battle at BIG EAST rival Connecticut and a 2-1 loss to North Carolina in the NCAA semifinals. The Irish trailed for just 35 minutes all season and captured another BIG EAST crown, with Waldrum repeating as BIG EAST coach of the year.

The 2001 squad then claimed the program's seventh straight BIG EAST title (only UConn women's basketball has won more consecutive BIG EAST titles, among team-oriented sports) while posting noteworthy wins over emerging national powers Penn State and Nebraska. A series of injuries to key players then beset the 2002 squad but the Irish rallied to go 6-1-0 in a seven-game stretch before losing on a late goal at top-ranked Stanford in the NCAA round of 16.

Waldrum's 2003 squad (20-3-1) then returned atop the national scene, owning the No. 2 national ranking for most of the season while owning the No. 2 national ranking distinction as one of the nation's most balanced teams on both sides of the ball – led by a pair of All-Americans in forward Amy Warner and defender Melissa Tancredi.

Waldrum came to Notre Dame after beginning the Baylor women's soccer team from scratch in 1995, ultimately leading the Bears to a 9-0-1 Big 12 Conference record and their first-ever Big 12 championship in any sport in 1998.

three Academic All-Americans, with defender Vanessa Pruzinsky named to the first team while forward Mary Boland and goalkeeper Erika Bohn were second-team selections.

The first five years of Waldrum era coincided with the career of defensive enforcer Pruzinsky, the classic definition of student-8th-ranked Stanford (the Pac-10 champ) before winning at 4th-ranked and Big 12 champion Nebraska in the quarterfinals.

The rookie coach had the fifth-seeded Irish clicking in their first three rounds of the '99 NCAA tournament – with that momentum continuing at the College Cup. Earlier in the

In three seasons at Baylor, Waldrum guided the Bears to a 46-14-3 record after he spent '95-'96 starting up the program. He earned Big 12 Conference and NSCAA central region coach-of-the-year honors after finishing with a 15-5-1 record in '98. The Bears posted wins over three ranked teams to earn their first NCAA bid and were ranked as high as 12th during the season.

He was named the 1996 national coach of the year for a first-year program and Baylor was named the best 1996 first-year program by Soccer Buzz, after posting a 17-3-1 season.

Waldrum spent six seasons (1989-94) as head coach of the men's and women's teams at the University of Tulsa, compiling a 66-33-6 record with the men's team and a 61-36-9 mark with the women (he remains the winningest all-time coach of both programs).

Waldrum was voted central region coach of the year in 1990 after the Golden Hurricane finished 9-6-1. His Tulsa women's teams produced four all-region players, six Academic All-Americans and two U.S. Olympic Festival players.

His 1993 Tulsa men's team finished second in the Missouri Valley Conference and fourth in the Midwest region with a 10-6-2 record. He was voted both the MVC and Midwest region coach of the year in '93 and his 1991 MVC championship team remains the only Tulsa men's soccer team to qualify for the NCAAs, finishing with a 14-3-0 record. Waldrum's men's team produced seven All-Americans, two national team members, three U.S. Olympic Festival players and three Professional Indoor Soccer League draft selections.

While at Tulsa, Waldrum also served as the state coach for the Olympic Development Program.

Waldrum started a first-year men's program at Texas Wesleyan in 1988 and had his first collegiate heading coaching position at Austin College in 1982. He served as director of coaching for the Texas Longhorns Soccer Club from 1987-89, coaching one of the seven teams in the club while overseeing the other teams. His team went 53-4-1 and finished third in the country, with Waldrum coaching and developing two Parade All-Americans, two national team players and one Youth World Cup player while with the Longhorns.

He served as an assistant coach with the U.S. women's under-18 and under-20 national teams in the late 1990s.

Waldrum was a four-time all-district selection as a player at Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls, Texas, graduating in 1981 as a physical education major and political science minor. Waldrum then played professionally for the Los Angeles Skyhawks and the Indianapolis Daredevils of the American Soccer League.

Born Sept. 25, 1956, the Irving, Texas, native and his wife Dianna have one son, 22-year-old Ben, who has competed in professional soccer with the El Paso Patriots of the A League and with the MISL's Dallas Sidekicks. Ben served on his father's Notre Dame staff in 2003 as a volunteer assistant coach.

A Visit with Randy Waldrum

What They've Said About Randy Waldrum

Q: How do you think the Notre Dame women's soccer program is perceived on a national level and how would you characterize the current state of the program?

A: "I'd like to think people view us as one of the premier programs in the country and I think that is the perception. And that's where we certainly want to keep it.

"What makes the sport of soccer tick is that all coaches and fans see the game a little bit differently. I would love for our team to be viewed as a team that plays a very attractive, attacking style. If I had my wish, I would want it to look like a mixture of the Dutch and the Brazilians, maybe some of Manchester United. Those are models that you'd like your team to look at.

"We've taken what was established and added to it. Previous Notre Dame teams played that attractive style and we've been able to continue that, with probably a little more athleticism – which you need to consistently win the big games. That's how the game has evolved.

"Maybe even a little bit to our downfall, we've always come out and tried to play. We've never just tried to sit back and defend and see if the best team can win from that. An attractive style is a crucial part of how this program will operate."

Q: What will it take to maintain the Notre Dame program at that elite level?

A: "Any coach will tell you it's about the players first. So we certainly have to continue to recruit the best, and our incoming class for 2004 is right up there among the best in the nation. A lot of our success has been due to the fact that we've added kids that are good fits for Notre Dame. That's a big reason why we were so successful in 2000. The chemistry of the team was so incredible, although at times we may not have been as talented as some earlier Notre Dame teams."

Q: What are some of the things that you have come to appreciate most at Notre Dame?

A: "On the outside, you always had an appreciation for the athletic tradition of Notre Dame and knew it was a great academic institution. Since I've been on campus, that certainly is very true and probably 10-fold once you realize the actual tradition. It's truly what a college campus should be all about.

"A couple things that really separate us is how committed the alums are to Notre Dame. We don't go anywhere around the country that somebody doesn't stop and talk to us about Notre Dame, and alumni clubs hold receptions for us all over the country. Those are things you don't find anywhere else.

"The biggest thing is what Notre Dame can do for student-athletes in their future. They get great benefits of playing four years on a top college team and receiving a great education. But in the long run, there are great employment opportunities that being an alum of Notre Dame can open for you. Those are the things that really have amazed me."

Q: Many of your top players have undergone position shifts. What is your philosophy about position changes?

A: "It's fairly common, because so many top kids played in the more high-profile positions with their club teams. It's another intangible when we are evaluating players and one has that versatility to play other positions, because you never know where they might play. We have several players with the skills, maturity and mentality to play multiple positions and they are valuable members of this team.

"We have a trend of playing with several defenders who converted from the offense and they have that sense of what the opposing forwards are going to try to do. That may give them an added edge, because they've been on the other side of the ball."

Q: Your inverted pyramid 4-3-3 system has been used by the U.S. Women's National Team but is fairly unique in the college game. What attracts you to this formation?

A: "I like the system for two primary reasons. First, it gives you four in the back and it's a lot easier to cover the full width of the field. Secondly, it still allows you to keep an attacking presence with three up front. It is the perfect system for the players we've had.

"For the system to work, you need midfielders like we have now such as Jen Buczkowski and Annie Schefter, who are technically-sound and comfortable handling the ball under pressure. The system also is a 'win-win' defensively, whether you're trying to match up with four or five midfielders from the opposition. You also need great outside backs – which we have in Candace Chapman and several of our newcomers – who can cover a lot of ground on the flanks.

"You recruit to fit your system – if you're happy with that system and want to stay in it – or you recruit the best players you can and then develop a system once that group gets there. We're to a point where we can recruit for the system. It doesn't mean that won't change if warranted, but we are very pleased and content with the way the system meshes with our current players."

Q: Your players have said that you have their respect and attention without using an overbearing style. How did that develop?

A: "I played for coaches who were not big yellers and screamers. My high school coach Simon Sanchez is still one of the best coaches I've ever been around. People respected him and loved to play for him, without him needing to ride us all the time – but we still had some intense practices and games.

"Today's athletes are very different. Many don't respond as well to a lot of yelling and screaming. I've always been fortunate to coach players who respond in a positive way and understand what we are asking them to do. We have a very intelligent group and they've been very receptive to our ways of doing things."

"I've known Randy Waldrum for 20 years and he has been a winner at every level he's coached. Randy's knowledge and experiences makes him one of the premier college coaches in the country. Coach Waldrum's teams all have similar characteristics: he lets them play with a lot of freedom and they play with confidence. His teams are always entertaining to watch."

Schellas Hyndman
head men's soccer coach
Southern Methodist University

"One of the great things about Randy is how he handles each player individually and gives players the chances to prove themselves. He also has a calm manner in dealing with players, but he still wants to get the most out of you. Everyone respects him for that and they believe and trust in him. The program is in great hands with Randy leading the way."

Kelly Lindsey '01
former two-time Notre Dame captain and member of Bay Area CyberRays

"We at Notre Dame feel very fortunate to have Randy Waldrum leading our women's soccer program. In speaking with people throughout the soccer community – including former and current players – it became readily evident how well-respected Randy is for his coaching style and knowledge of the game. He's a proven winner and we look forward to many more great years of Notre Dame women's soccer with Randy at the helm."

Kevin White
Notre Dame athletic director

"Randy Waldrum is one of the top American soccer coaches in the game today. His success at every level, including youth, collegiate and as an assistant coach at the youth national team level, is an indication of his commitment to the game and his trade."

Tony DiCicco,
former U.S. national team

"Randy is one of the nation's most organized and knowledgeable coaches. He has helped set a great standard for Notre Dame soccer. Even though he's such a respected and experienced coach, he remains very humble and has a great thirst for gathering knowledge about the game. He travels around the world to observe at various soccer events and is constantly improving his ability as a coach."

Bobby Clark
Notre Dame head men's soccer coach

Alvin Alexander enters his second season on the Notre Dame women's soccer staff as the program's primary assistant coach, following 10 years as a highly successful coach at several youth soccer levels in the Dallas area – including two years as men's soccer coach at the University of Texas at Permian Basin.

The addition reunites head coach Randy Waldrum with one of his former teammates, as the pair played together at Midwestern State (in Wichita Falls, Texas) during the late 1970s.

Alexander's soccer knowledge, tremendous teaching ability and infectious personality paid big dividends for the Notre Dame women's soccer team in 2003, when the Irish were ranked No. 2 in the nation for most of the season while dominating on both sides of the ball.

"I have known Alvin for 30 years, going back to our days when I was at Irving MacArthur High School and he played for one of our rivals at Arlington Lamar, and he embodies the primary qualities for this position on our staff," says Waldrum.

"Alvin has the loyalty, character and work ethic that are so important for success in the college game. He also has tremendous recruiting connections with club and ODP soccer – not just in Texas but throughout the nation – and brings great technical knowledge to the table, with unique nuances in his coaching that impact each player's skill development.

"In particular, our attacking players have benefited greatly from his insight and training techniques. When you have someone like Alvin who has played and competed at such a high level, it truly rubs off on those around him and our players are noticeably better by working with him."

Alexander founded the Black Magic Soccer Club in 1989, growing to 11 men's and women's teams while emerging as one of the top clubs in West Texas. He served until 1999 as the club's director, recruiting and training coaches while assisting in the development of some 50 players who earned college scholarships.

Most recently, Alexander was head coach in 2002-03 for three different teams (under-13 and u-15 girls, u-11 boys) with the Dallas Texans, one of the nation's premier soccer club programs. His experience also includes eight years ('93-'01) as a staff coach and trainer for the North Texas and Midland Olympic Development Programs and four years ('99-'03) as a soccer coach at the Oakridge School in Arlington, including two seasons as girls varsity coach.

Alexander earlier was the girls development coach and head coach for three American Eagles Soccer Club teams in Colleyville ('01-'02) after serving in a similar capacity for three Arlington Strikers boys teams ('99-'00), with his director's duties including the hiring of supervising of the entire coaching staff.

The Arlington native coached the men's soccer team at Texas-Permian Basin from 1995-97, during which time the soccer program made its debut at the Odessa school. He also was a head coach and player with the Permian Basin Mirage professional indoor soccer team and played professionally in the late 1970s with the ASL's L.A. Skyhawks and Indianapolis Daredevils.

Alexander was a team captain and earned Texas college all-star honors each of his four seasons at Midwestern State (1975-78), adding All-America honors as a junior in 1977 while ranking among the nation's top-10 goalscorers in three of his seasons. He ended his career as Midwestern State's all-time goal leader (58) and later received his bachelor's degree from Midwestern State, in applied arts and science.

His undergraduate days included 1975 training in Leeds, England, and he was a head coach and trainer for a 1991 Argentina Rosario international tour before serving as head coach and organizer for a 1998 tour of Leon, Mexico.

Alexander and his wife Susan are the parents of 23-year-old twins Toby and April (Lamarsh), 21-year-old daughter Amber and 13-year-old daughter Alexis.

Assistant Coach
Second Season

She logged 7,121 minutes (sixth in NCAA history) in her four-year Baylor career while posting a 1.20 goals-against average, an .802 save percentage and 28 shutouts. The three-time all-Big 12 Conference and three-time Big 12 all-academic team honoree posted her top season as a sophomore in 1998, earning NSCAA second team All-America honors after ranking 12th in the Former Baylor All-American and WUSA goalkeeper Dawn Greathouse enters her second season on the Notre Dame women's soccer staff as an assistant coach, reuniting with her former college coach Randy Waldrum (who departed for Notre Dame after the 1998 season).

Greathouse made an immediate impact in her first season at Notre Dame, providing valuable instruction and insight for goalkeepers Erika Bohn (who was invited to the U.S. Under-21 National Team camp) and Nikki Westfall. The Irish finished fifth in the nation with a 0.49 season goals-against average in 2003 and were fourth with 15 shutouts – also compiling a 956-minute shutout streak that ranks fifth in NCAA history and longest in Division I women's soccer since 1999. Notre Dame also faced just one deficit during the first 19 games of the 2003 season, en route to a 20-3-1 final record.

"Dawn has done a great job with our 'keepers and we expect that to continue on an even higher level this season," says Waldrum, whose 2004 squad will include Bohn, Westfall and freshman Lauren Karas providing tremendous depth in the nets.

"Dawn is one of the best goalkeepers I've ever coached and her skills and knowledge are further legitimized by the fact that she played in the WUSA. She brings a great level of experience but also knows what the expectations are on the pro level. Dawn is able to expose our players to what the inner workings of elite-level soccer are all about and that supports what our staff as a whole is trying to teach the players."

Greathouse – who trained with the U.S. Under-20 National Team in 1998 – played with the Washington Freedom in the first two seasons of the Women's United Soccer Association (2001 and '02), also playing for the San Jose Cyber Rays in '02 and '03. She made eight career starts in the WUSA while backing up National Team players Siri Mullinix (Washington) and former Notre Dame star LaKeysia Beene (San Jose).

nation with a 0.69 GAA. She helped the '98 team win Baylor's first Big-12 title in any sport – before an ACL knee injury sidelined her from Baylor's second straight trip to the NCAAs.

An NSCAA and Parade All-American at Allen (Texas) High School, Greathouse helped the Texas Longhorns place second nationally and trained with the U.S. under-16 and u-17 national teams, the Region III Olympic Development Program and North Texas ODP. Jaime Scollon

Athletic Trainer
Temple '00

Jaime Scollon is in her third year with the Notre Dame athletic training staff and enters her second season working with the women's soccer program, in addition to working with women's rowing. She previously worked with the Notre Dame women's swimming and diving, women's lacrosse and the men's and women's tennis teams during the 2002-03 academic year.

Scollon came to Notre Dame after serving as a graduate assistant athletic trainer at the University of Arizona for two years. While at Arizona, she was the head women's gymnastics trainer and an assistant football athletic trainer. She also was a member of the committee that formed the department policy for eating disorders and earned her master's degree in educational psychology, with an emphasis in physical education, in 2002.

Before studying at Arizona, Scollon was a student athletic trainer at Temple, working with track and field, football, men's gymnastics and in general training room duties. She earned a bachelor's degree in kinesiology, with a concentration in athletic training, in 2000.

Scollon was a volunteer athletic trainer with Mobile Sports Medicine for the 2002 Tucson Rodeo. She also served as sports medicine director of a number of different summer camps.

While at Temple and Arizona, Scollon was a Dean's List honoree and member of the Golden Key National Honor Society. She was a presenter at the 2002 National Athletic Trainers Association Annual Meeting and Clinical Symposium and is a member of the NATA.

Born Aug. 6, 1976, she is married to Jim Scollon.

Lisa Shall

Strength & Conditioning
Slippery Rock '00

Lisa Shall enters her second season as the Notre Dame women's soccer program's strength and conditioning coach. Shall - who also works with several other Irish teams - has previous strength and conditioning experience at Princeton, Columbia, the University of Pittsburgh and her alma mater Slippery Rock.

Shall served as an assistant varsity strength and conditioning coach at Princeton during the 2002-03 school year. She developed conditioning programs for several athletic teams, including the Tigers soccer programs, while helping to organize and administer all aspects of strength and conditioning for a wide variety of Princeton's 38 athletic teams.

She spent two years as a graduate assistant for strength and conditioning at Columbia University, receiving her master's in physical education in May of 2002. Shall's specific responsibilities at Columbia included working with the soccer programs and several other intercollegiate teams.

Shall, a native of Warren, Pa., also served as a strength and conditioning intern at Pittsburgh in 2000 and was a volunteer strength coach and personal trainer at Slippery Rock from 1998-2000. She graduated from Slippery Rock in 2000 with a bachelor of science degree in exercise science.

Pete LaFleur

Sports Information
Notre Dame '90

Pete LaFleur is in his ninth year as an assistant sports information director at Notre Dame, also serving as the historical trophy-display archivist and publicist for Notre Dame's National Monogram Club letterwinners organization. He currently serves as the department's SID for the nationally-ranked women's soccer, baseball and fencing programs, in addition to serving as an action photographer at Notre Dame sporting events.

During his SID career, LaFleur has worked with 14 sports, made trips to the men's and women's College Cup and the College World Series, and has overseen publicity for two national soccer player-of-the-year recipients and three first-round Major League draft picks. His media guides have been judged among the best in the nation, including second place for the 2002 and '03 women's soccer guides.

LaFleur spent 1995-96 as assistant sports information director at the University of Virginia, where he worked primarily with the nationally-ranked men's soccer and baseball teams. As assistant SID at the University of San Francisco from 1990-95, he worked with the baseball and men's golf teams and all the women's teams, also serving as an assistant venue press officer in preparation for 1994 World Cup matches played at Stanford University.

He graduated from Notre Dame in 1990 with a degree in the Program of Liberal Studies and earned a master's in sports and fitness management from San Francisco in 1994. The Englewood, Colo., native was a student assistant in the Notre Dame SID office, working as a primary contact for the men's lacrosse team, and also wrote for The Observer student newspaper and The Scholastic student magazine. He was president of Holy Cross Hall during the dormitory's final year on campus.
