Looking to Take the Next Step

Notre Dame's men's track and field team is developing aspirations beyond the BIG EAST Championship level.

The Notre Dame men's track and field team began competition in 1889 – the second varsity sport at the University. Throughout its 115-year history the Irish have produced 121 All-Americans (some earning multiple honors in a single year), a bevy of all-BIG EAST honors and four BIG EAST Championship team titles. Notre Dame has always been a contender in the BIG EAST since it joined in 1996, finishing out of the top three at the indoor and outdoor meet just one time.

Over the last three seasons, however, the Irish have developed into the team to beat at the conference meet. Notre Dame has won three of the last four BIG EAST track and field meets contested (one indoor, two outdoor) and should be in the running for two more titles in 2005.

While Notre Dame loses a crucial conference competitor after the graduation of Godwin Mbagwu (the '04 BIG EAST outdoor most outstanding field performer), the team returns 10 athletes who earned all-conference honors last season and key elements of four relays who finished in the top three at the conference meet as well.

"The goal each year is to win the BIG EAST team titles," head track and field coach Joe Piane says.

"But we have started to develop several competitors who have aspirations beyond the conference level."

The one student-athlete who has developed into a force for the Irish men's team is senior hurdler Selim Nurudeen. An example of hard work and dedication, Nurudeen has improved each and every season with the Irish and broke through for a terrific campaign in 2004.

Nurudeen claimed his BIG EAST 60-meter hurdle title last season and followed up with his third consecutive title in the 110-meter hurdles at the outdoor meet. He also qualified for his first two NCAA Championship meets last season and was close to unstoppable at the BIG EAST outdoor meet. He ended up finishing first in the 110-meter hurdles, second in the 200 meters and helped the 4x100 and 4x400 relay teams finish second as well.

"I think Selim has the ability to go beyond where he is at right now," sprints and hurdles coach John Millar says.

"We're looking at him making the finals of the NCAA's this year. That is his first goal, along with winning the BIG EAST (outdoor) hurdles for the fourth year in a row. He hasn't reached his potential by any means and we're going to use this year to see how far he can go."

Nurudeen gives the team a solid foundation to build the sprint corps around and the emergence of junior Ryan Postel late last year helps as well. Postel set the school record in the indoor 400 meters last season and ran the fourth-fastest outdoor 400 meters in school history as well. He was also a key member of Notre Dame's record-setting indoor 4x400-meter relay and the outdoor team which ran the fastest time in 19 years (3:09.65).

"Ryan is someone that we have high expectations for," Millar says.

"He was a regional qualifier last year and won the BIG EAST in the 400 meters and last season was really the first in which he was running the quarter mile. He is a great competitor and we're looking for him to extend on what he did last year."

Postel spent the fall of 2004 working as a walk-on wide receiver on the Notre Dame football team.

"The goal each year is to win the BIG EAST team titles. But we have started to develop several competitors who have aspirations beyond the conference level."

*– Joe Piane
head track and field coach*

The men's sprint group might be as deep as it has been in the last five years. With Nurudeen, Postel, senior Trevor McClain-Duer and sophomores Jordan Powell and Tommie Lee, the Irish have a solid corps to build on.

"I think last year our men's sprint group performed pretty well overall," Millar says.

"I think that group had some good performances throughout the year and gave us something to build on for this year."

The sprint group will also add a talented freshman hurdler with Austin Wechter and the football team will provide some additional short-sprint depth with all-BIG EAST performer Dwight Ellick along with freshmen Terrail Lambert and Justin Hoskins.

One aspect of the Irish men's team that has shown marked improvement over the last three years has been the throws group. Bolstered by the addition of throws coach B.J. Linnenbrink, the Irish throws have played a key role in Notre Dame's BIG EAST Conference performance.

Senior Chip Roberts has worked hard to become one of the top throwers in the conference and will be the key contributor for the Irish in 2005.

"Chip Roberts should be the top returning hammer thrower in the conference," Linnenbrink says.

"Chip has scored (finished in the top eight) in every BIG EAST meet he has been to."

While Roberts will carry the load for Notre Dame, sophomore Garrett Koxlien and freshman Kyle Annen are also expected to make a name for themselves in the conference mix.

"I'm looking for Kyle (Annen) to do some things in the BIG EAST that people won't expect. We also have Derek Goguen in the javelin who is a junior and had a good year at the BIG EAST. We're hoping Derek can break into the top three at the BIG EAST outdoor meet this year."

Freshman Mike Schubert will also play a role in the throws group as the team's top threat in the shot put.

Continuing in the field events, the Irish are deep and talented in the horizontal and vertical jumps. Seniors Chris Staron and Ryan Mineburg, along with sophomores Adam Record and Christopher Jacques, give the team a deep high jump group. The team will be hurt by the loss of horizontal jumps standout Godwin Mbagwu.

"We graduated Godwin, but we return a couple of good high jumpers," Winsor says.

"Staron is very consistent. He took thing at the conference last year and we look for him to do that or better in '05. Mineburg is inconsistent. He has the ability to be right with Chris and we need him to be more consistent with his heights."

Winsor also has a talented sophomore pole vault tandem with Dave Viken and Justin Oppel. Both of them adjusted well to collegiate track and field in 2004 and are looking to develop into 16-0 vaulters.

"Viken and Oppel came in and did really well in the pole vault," Winsor says.

"They faced difficult weather conditions at the BIG EAST outdoor meet but for two freshmen, they competed very well.

"They push each other a lot and their competition is good for each other. It is very hard to match what you do in high school during your first year in college. Former All-American Mike Brown didn't jump 16-0 his freshman year but then wound up jumping 17-10 and being an earning that All-American honor."

The men's distance group will be its traditional strength for Notre Dame in 2005. The return for a fifth-year by Todd Mobley gives the team a consistent performer in the 5,000 to 10,000-meter range, while all-BIG EAST performers Kaleb Van Ort and Ryan Johnson will also be in the mix.

"Based off of last year's track season we will have a lot of returnees step up," distance coach Joe Piane says.

"We also brought in several good freshmen, so I believe that we are actually a stronger team than we were a year ago. When we compare workouts now to those we did last year, the team seems to be in better shape."

The distance group also will be helped by the return of 2003 BIG EAST 5,000-meter Champion Tim Moore, who missed the '04 season with an injury.

While the goals remain the same for the Irish in 2005 – winning both the BIG EAST indoor and outdoor titles – the emergence of several athletes who can compete on the NCAA Championship scale has pushed Notre Dame into the national track and field scene. By hosting several of the top indoor meets of the season (including the Mayo and Alex Wilson Invitationals), Notre Dame has continued to be a fixture in the Midwest Track and Field scene with visions of improved success on the national stage as well.

Climbing Back to the Top

Women's track and field team looking for their first BIG EAST team title in two years.

The 2001 BIG EAST indoor meet marked the first overall conference title for the Notre Dame women's track and field team and although the team has achieved close to the same point total in each successive BIG EAST meet since '01, the Irish have yet to break through for their second league title.

Key injuries, graduations and untimely drop offs in performance have led to Notre Dame posting three second-place finishes and a third-place effort at the last four BIG EAST meets. The Irish return a loaded team in 2005, however, and will hope to incorporate a talented rookie group toward the team goal of a BIG EAST title during the upcoming track and field campaign.

"Our goals are certainly to win the women's indoor and outdoor BIG EAST titles," jumps coach Scott Winsor says.

"I would expect that we will get (several) athletes to the NCAAs as well."

The women's distance group proved to be the strength of the squad in 2004 and the '05 season should follow in that same vein. Perennial All-American and school record holder Molly Huddle has proven to be one of the top runners in the entire country in just two years at Notre Dame and the junior from Elmira, N.Y., was the top collegiate in the 5,000 meters at the U.S. Olympic Trials last summer.

"Molly has the potential to be one of the great runners in the country," women's distance coach Tim Connelly says.

Huddle has won two consecutive BIG EAST outdoor 5,000-meter titles to go along with two straight NCAA Mid-east Regional victories in that same event. She will be the anchor of a unit that welcomes back to full strength senior Lauren King, who was limited at the end of the 2004 season with an injury. King has won the last two BIG EAST indoor mile competitions and should be favored for her third-straight this season.

Combine Huddle and King with two-time 2004 All-American Kerry Meagher (indoor mile, outdoor 1,500 meters) and the women's distance group should prove to be one of the strongest in the BIG EAST, if not the Mid-east Region.

While the women's distance runners have been a team strength over the last four to five years, the sprint and jumps group have been up and down at times. Sprints coach John Millar recognizes that his group might have underachieved in 2004.

"I was disappointed in the way we performed last year," Millar says.

"We didn't perform up to our expectations and we had some injuries and performances that were sub-par. Generally speaking, we didn't get the things done that we wanted to."

The Irish failed to send a sprint relay group to an NCAA Championship meet for the first time in three years last season, but Millar has high hopes for his talented, but inexperienced group.

"We have a really young group with six freshmen, two sophomores and a senior," Millar says.

"Our goals are certainly to win the women's indoor and outdoor BIG EAST titles. I would expect that we will get (several) athletes to the NCAAs as well."

— Scott Winsor
jumps coach

"I think we have a lot of talented individuals and most of the events covered, but yet we're not sure how they'll adapt to collegiate competition right off the bat."

Freshman Dominique Manning will look to step into the sprint-hurdle role that the Irish missed last season due to the 2003 graduation of all-BIG EAST hurdle performer Tameisha King (who is now one of the top long jumpers in the nation on the professional level). Sophomore Maryann Erigha started her rookie season strong, fell off in the middle due to injuries, but rebounded at the end to just miss out on the NCAA outdoor meet in the 200 meters. Classmate Okechi Ogbuokiri ran well on Notre Dame's relays in '04 and will look to make a name for herself as an individual this season. Rookie Crysta Swayzer also will be a young runner to keep an eye on.

"Maryann Erigha had some injuries that hindered her for most of last year," Millar says.

"She's showed great progress in the fall. (Senior) Tiffany Gunn will run the 400-meter hurdles and we hope for her to avoid injuries and run a complete season.

"We are depending on a lot of freshmen to be a factor in how well we do. Overall, I think we have improved and I'm anxious to see what happens over the course of the year."

Similar to Millar with the sprint group, Scott Winsor and the women's jumps had some developmental problems in 2004. Winsor also was without the services of BIG EAST high jump champion Emily Loomis, who missed the '04 campaign while concentrating on volleyball at Notre Dame.

"It was a disappointing year for the female jumpers last year," Winsor says.

"Stacey Cowan did not make the outdoor NCAAs, I think she just ran out of gas. She hates to lose but sometimes she gets a little too intense. (Triple jumper) Petra Dankova ended on a high note at the BIG EAST outdoor meet on a jump that put her fourth or fifth."

The return of Loomis, coupled with All-American and multiple event star Cowan will give the Irish women's high jump group one of the deepest in the nation.

"Emily, Stacey and (sophomore) Cassie Gullickson should go in and dominate the high jump," Winsor says.

"I'm hoping that we can get at least two of them to the NCAAs."

Gullickson came in as a highly-touted freshman out of Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., but struggled at times adjusting to collegiate track and field.

"If Cassie gets back to where she is capable of being, she's going to be a dominate force in the conference," Winsor says.

"She's capable of being huge for us at the conference meet and making it to the NCAAs. She should be the jumper that we see the most improvement out of."

The Irish jumps group did suffer a devastating blow over the late summer/early fall when 2004 BIG EAST outdoor pole vault champion Laura Huarte injured her knee. She will miss the entire '05 season while working on her rehabilitation.

In keeping with the developmental status that the Irish women's track team has this season, the women's throw group, led by junior Meghan Horn, is another facet of the team that is ready to make a name for themselves.

"The BIG EAST is our main focus and we're trying to get as many people on to the regional as possible," throws coach B.J. Linnenbrink says.

"Meghan Horn was just scratching the surface last year. We want to try to have a couple of conference champions in the throws and I think Meghan is one of our best shots in the discus."

Horn has been forced to carry much of the load in the women's throw group over the last two years.

For Notre Dame to break through for its first outdoor women's BIG EAST team title, or return to the podium for the indoor meet, the team will need to lean on its veteran distance group while a talented underclassmen group finds a way to reach its potential. The Irish have enough talent to compete with the conference's best teams, but avoiding injury and maximizing its talent will be a key to the team's success in 2005.

Jean Marinangeli has played a key role in Notre Dame's top seven cross country runners during her first two complete seasons with the Irish in 2002 and 2003.
